TS Series Smokers

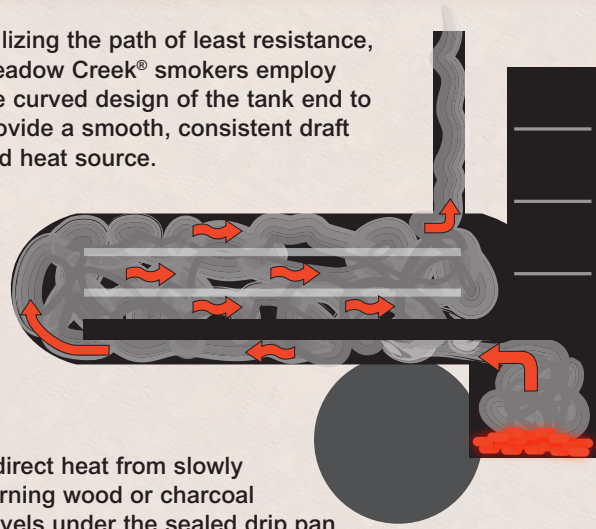

Smokers are considered by purists to be what barbecue is all about. Low temperatures and slow cooking allow flavor to develop in a natural, delicious way. The result is the most tender and juicy meat, every time.

Pork shoulders cooked for 12 hours at low heat melt in your mouth!

How it Works

Utilizing the path of least resistance, Meadow Creek® smokers employ the curved design of the tank end to provide a smooth, consistent draft and heat source.

Indirect heat from slowly burning wood or charcoal travels under the sealed drip pan. Smoke circulates around the meat for slow, even cooking. The drip pan can also be used as a water smoker with the drain spigot closed.

★ TS SERIES SMOKER STANDARD FEATURES

When considering which tank type smoker to purchase, make sure to do your homework. Compare the competition's features with a Meadow Creek unit.

Included in all smokers built by Meadow Creek are a collection of the best features the industry has to offer. Many of the features that are standard in our smokers are either not available from our competitors or are only available as expensive upgrades.

Since 2005 the Meadow Creek TS Series smokers have performed beyond our expectations and we believe they are worthy of your consideration. Dare to compare!

Indirect heat comes from slowly burning wood or charcoal in the firebox. An ash pan and heavy door with positive latches make the process easy.

PR

PR Series Roasters

For more than 30 years, Meadow Creek's PR Series cookers have outperformed the competition with an indirect air flow and adjustable temperature control. These cookers have become the choice of cooks and chefs all over the USA and internationally for cooking large cuts of meat that benefit from low and slow cooking.

Designed for whole hogs from 50 lbs. to 300 lbs. live weight, these units are perfect for butts, briskets, ribs, turkeys, whole chickens, prime rib, pork loins and more. Add a second tier grate and double the capacity. Adding a grilling pan turns your PR roaster into a large capacity grill. Additional options expand the PR's capabilities to do it all!

How it Works

Results have shown that the ease with which our PR models consistently maintain even temperatures make them the ideal choice for those on the competition circuit.

There are no limits to what, and how, you can cook on the new PR36! Try a pork butt or brisket using indirect heat, then put the steaks, burgers and hot dogs on direct heat.
